

KEEP HAWAII FORTIFIED IS URGED IN NEW HAVEN PAPER'S EDITORIAL

From Hiram Bingham 3rd who spent last summer with his family on Maui there has come a copy of the New Haven Courier Journal with an editorial marked which Mr. Bingham rightfully believes will be of interest to Maui readers as showing an Eastern States attitude toward Hawaii.

The editorial which is entitled "Hold Hawaii" follows:

"When Admiral Dewey took Manila in the leafy month of May, 1898, most of us had to hurry to our attases to find out where the Philippines were. Even today our knowledge of the geography of the Pacific is still so hazy that when Japan proposes that we do not fortify our islands in the Pacific, some of us are inclined to group Hawaii, Guam, and the Philippines under the same heading, as 'foreign possessions,' the fortification of which only serves to annoy Japan and postpone the fruition of practical plans for disarmament. As a matter of fact, these three groups of islands are scattered over such a wide area that the fortifying or non-fortifying of them present radically different problems. Hawaii which is about 2,000 miles from San Francisco, is more than 4,000 miles from the Philippines. Even Guam is as far from Honolulu as Liverpool is from New York. On the other hand the distance from the Philippines or from Guam to Nagasaki is only about 1,000 miles. Powerful fortifications in the Philippines or at Guam might properly be construed by Japan as bases from which we could make a successful attack on the Asiatic coast but fortifications in Hawaii no more constitute a menace to Japan, (it is 3,445 miles from Honolulu to the nearest Japanese port) than fortifications at Sandy Hook constitute a menace to Germany.

"The Japanese do not like the climate of the Philippines. Guam is a mere speck on the ocean. In Hawaii, however, more than 125,000 Japanese have found their homes. The climate agrees with them—more would like to come. Of the 10,000 babies born each year in the Hawaiian Islands 5,000 are Japanese. We are told on good authority that most of these Japanese are not even 'hyphenates.' There is practically no such thing as a Japanese-American. They maintain their own language, religion, political loyalty, and patriotic devotion to the homeland just as we, Americans, would do were we to find ourselves on a group of Japanese islands. Thus Japan already has a foothold in Hawaii. The Treaty of Versailles has given her, in the port of Jaluit, the Marshall Islands, a naval base which is as near Honolulu as San Francisco is. If we relax our vigilance in defending Hawaii, we shall tempt Japan to take advantage of the fact that nearly half of the population is already Japanese, and that a conquest of these islands would be a comparatively easy matter. This could only lead to a long and terrible war. The best way to prevent such a war is to make of Hawaii a veritable Gibraltar. Such a procedure could not be construed as an aggressive move against any Asiatic power, for Hawaii is too far away from Asia to serve as a base of attack. On the other hand, Hawaii is near enough to our own mainland to serve as the keystone of our defense of the Pacific coast. Without it, Japanese submarines could not act against our coastwise trade, nor could a Japanese fleet carry on naval operations in the vicinity of San Francisco.

"We can well afford to agree not to fortify the Philippines or Guam. As long as Japan holds the Carolines and the Marshalls, it would be practically impossible for us to carry on war for the defense of the Philippines. The proposal that Japan shall not fortify the two naval bases in the Carolines and Marshalls which she inherited from Germany, namely, Turk and Jaluit, is of little importance. They do not need fortifications. The Carolines and Marshalls are so poorly charted there are so many strong currents and dangerous shoals, that it would be a simple matter to protect Turk or Jaluit by laying mines which would preclude the possibility of any of our warships reaching their vicinity. Using those islands as bases for fleets or destroyers and submarines, Japan can easily control our Philippine communications. Jaluit puts her within easy striking distance of Hawaii, just as the possession of Hawaii would put her within easy striking distance of San Francisco. It is obvious that it would be just as foolish for us to reduce the fortifications of Honolulu as those of San Francisco Bay. Our safety and happiness as a nation bordering on the Pacific depends on our holding Hawaii at all costs. In our desire for peace, we must not neglect the key to the situation. We long ago gave up duels and private warfare, but we still lock our front doors. To fortify the Philippines might be considered an act of aggression; to fortify Hawaii is merely locking our front door."

More Americans As Teachers Required In the Philippines

MANILA, P. I., Nov. 2.—(Associated Press Mail)—Sixty additional American teachers are to be employed by the bureau of education at the beginning of the next school year, according to an announcement just made by the secretary of the department of public instruction.

Dr. W. V. Marquardt, Philippine educational agent in the United States has been called to secure that number of teachers who are wanted here to teach English to the Filipino teachers.

The announcement said the new teachers will be employed at salaries ranging from 3,000 pesos (about $1500) to 3200 pesos (about $1600) per annum.

It was stated that the employment of additional American teachers is in line with the policy of the department of public instruction of extending the use of English in the Philippines.

Child Drowned; Would Be Rescuer In Peril

Running to the rescue at the call of a frightened child, and jumping overboard regardless of the heavy sea, Yamamoto of Kihel on Tuesday placed himself in a dangerous predicament, from which he was rescued by a rope thrown from the pier by more rescuers.

Seichi Fugi, a little six year old Japanese boy, had left his parents at ten o'clock in the morning and with a few companions was playing on the end of the pier at Kihel. The next that was heard from the children was the report of one of them about two o'clock that little Seichi had fallen into the water. Yamamoto, who was the first to hear the story, ran out the pier and seeing the body in the water, jumped after it not thinking of his own safety. The sea proved too strong for him, and he, too, would have been drowned but for the rope thrown from the pier. He was pulled up safely, but Seichi was dead. It is thought that the strong wind must have blown the child over. The body was buried Wednesday.
